

Retiring the National Debt.

Mark Saiki

1. Deficit Busting. A propose a conservative return to the Progressive Tax System, where wealthy Americans paid their fair share of taxes. In this way, we will make America Great Again.<sup>1</sup> In addition, my proposal for a Gross Transaction Flat Tax on Corporations, which is based on the proven track record of the sales tax, and potentially offers a doubling of tax revenue, which would pay-off the National Debt, in short order.

Warning and Disclaimer: Be aware that neither NMSU, nor the Congressional Budget office have tested my numbers. And they won't do this unless and until I am elected into the House of Representatives. That would be a fate, which presently runs at least one-million to one against in Las Vegas, Nevada.<sup>2</sup>

2. National Pork Barrel Day.

After our National Debt has been paid off, and 25% of government surpluses, have been banked, in case of rainy days, a bi-partisan panel of Senators shall discuss potential uses for the balance of those surpluses. Among the issues to be considered are truth and reconciliation panels for minority groups, reparations (including reparation for the descendants of slaves), and enforcing Native American treaty rights in the International Court of Justice. Taking the lead out of the drinking water in Flint, Michigan and other communities. Purifying water, which has been polluted by fracking. Fully and fairly compensating the victims of environmental disasters, chief of which include Rocky Flats, the Love Canal, and hexalvinyl chloride, etc. Mental health counseling, including PTSD for our veterans, and medical care for those same military veterans. Repairing and replacing our decaying inner cities and manufacturing base should also be considered. As should incentive plans for individual high achieving teachers and public schools. And financial aid for low achieving schools, who aspire to become high achievers. Increases in funding for Preventative health care must be discussed.

As a peace offering to Donald Trump (and Steve Pearce's) supporters, after I am elected to office, I will even hold Congressional hearings for building a $150 billion beautiful Border wall, with a beautiful gate. We should also hold negotiations to see if Mexico wants to pay for this, right after we hold hearings about Obama's illegal wiretaps, his birth certificate forgery scandals,<sup>3</sup> Comrade Trumps' Russian connections and collusion, Michael Flynn's treason trials, and Ted Cruz's father's trial for conspiracy to assassinate John F. Kennedy. Hey we can also hold the umpteenth impeachment hearings for Hillary Clinton's email scandals, White-Watergate, for the conspiracy to cover-up the death of Vince Foster, and for running a sex slave ring out of a Washington DC restaurant.

If and when that magical day comes, when we tear up the National Debt, just like a mortgage, which we paid off by our blood, sweat and tears, let us fully fund the Social Security Trust fund, boost Medicare and Medicaid. Let us then return to Gunnar Myrdal's paradox of poverty amid plenty.<sup>4</sup> But let us be fiscally prudent. Do not lobby for these pork barrel projects, unless and until we retire the National Debt, to be warehoused, just like we "care for" our old folks in nursing homes.<sup>5</sup>

3. Feasibility.

Is paying off the National Debt a goal, which is achievable in our lifetimes?
Is it really any more an insurmountable goal than our Greatest Generation who ended the Great Depression and fought and won a two-front Global War?
Do we have the audacity to hope that we are the ones who we are waiting for, to ride in and solve our own financial crises?<sup>6</sup>
Is there an alternative universe where Tax and Spend Populist Liberal is a source of pride, rather than a damning incitement?

I, for one, believe that day is today.

I think that the time is now.

I, for one, believe that Mao Tse-Tung<sup>7</sup> was right,

"A Journey of a Thousand Miles, begins with a single step."

You can call me a cockeyed-optimist,<sup>8</sup> but you can also call me the Democratic candidate for the US House of Representatives in New Mexico's Second District. This is a seat now held by Republican Steve Pearce, whose $1.3 million war chest has been funded by the Oil and Gas, Real Estate and Agribusiness lobbies.

End Notes.

<sup>1</sup> With due credit to the slogan, who Donald Trump probably did not copyright it. If he did, I will use my standing as an aggrieved taxpayer, to offset his damages against his multiple and repeated violations of the emoluments clauses.

How can any of you support White Supremists, when their poster boys are Steve Bannon and Robert Spencer? Mr. Spencer's main theory is non-violent ethnic cleansing. Newsflash, they are not getting me, or my Caucasian wife, to voluntarily move to Liberia, over my dead body, clutching a pair of defensively lethal nunchuck sticks.

By contrast, Adolph Hitler himself, Vladimir Putin and the Ku Klux Klan are all living examples that they are manifestly and empirically inferior to the Franklin Roosevelt's Little People, or the diverse, American middle class (like Kazhir Khan). For those of you who have not read Briet Bard News, Adolph Hitler, Fredric Douglas and Elvis Presley are all alive and well, and they are living in Kellie Ann Conway's alternative universe.

<sup>3</sup> His mother was an American citizen. Even if he was born in Kenya, he could still run for President.

<sup>4</sup> And Lyndon Johnson's Great Society; Ronald Reagan's shining City on a Hill; and Martin Luther King's society where a person will be judged by the content of his character, not the color of his skin. In addition, Gandhi said that a society is judged by how it treats its most vulnerable members.

<sup>5</sup> A subject which I know well, having entertained (if you want to flatter me and refer it by that exaggerated term), by singing in nursing homes for the past 16 years.

<sup>8</sup> You can also call me a figurative, but not a literal dreamer. I am Sansei, born in Chicago, Illinois, and I have a long form birth certificate in order to prove it to Comrade elect - Donald Trump. I also have colleagues, from the University of Colorado School of Law, who can testify that I actually attended classes, played chess and won the CU Trivia Bowl.
